DeadSpace2 Preview skins are the second round of skins that will be available when the game is released in a few weeks. Today you get to see a preview of the Goblin warlock from the first set of skins. Later in the week you will get to see a preview of the Freelancer medic and the Technician. The set of skins are expected to cost $14.99 each and is available at the following link Not much is known about the game and whether the game will be single-player, multiplayer or co-op. However, the game is slated to be released some time in 2012. Read more on this and all other gaming news at AllGamers.com. Horde is one of the anticipated Warhammer 40K releases in 2012. A concept image has been released for the first trailer which should give you a glimpse of the gameplay mechanics. The video provides an insight into the gameplay mechanic of the game in the form of an introductory video. Watch the video below. The first trailer for FFT (Free Form Theorem) has been released. This new game is a multiplayer party-based game that has been developed by Stargazer Studios. Starhawk. The game is meant to be a free to play game. This is based on the online community and the user base of the game which is in millions. Wake n' Bake (no link to the actual game) is an interesting game that tries to take on Cooking 2 and Mission Impossible. The basic premise is that you are a chef and you are trying to keep the car full of supplies in order to continue your journey. You can bake, boil, and grill in order to eat and you can even make the dishes a part of the survival situation in the game. The in-game tutorial is pretty good, but if you want to learn the ropes a bit more, there is a web-based tutorial for the game, in case you are a bit more impatient. Here is the Gameplay Trailer for Rise of the Videogame Babe All the power is in your hands! Move and look as you please with the mouse and using the WASD keys, you can walk around, climb, and even jump over obstacles. As you navigate the landscape, you'll collect coins, springs, and springs, and can use them to climb walls, repair damage, and even gain extra health. Using a combination of the spring shots and simple jumping, you can even perform some fancy stunts. Watch the

Keymacro works as a simple shortcut for all your actions in deadspace2. You can assign actions to it, for example, enter the gun store and press "X" to buy weapons. Then you can hold down "X" to purchase all weapons in the store. The advanced version of the gadget allows you to schedule actions. So you can decide that you want to restart the game at X:00. Then the gadget will run some scripts to start the game. Limitations: The gadget should work with all the modxplorer scripts and allows you to run actions without buying a new addon. I used the deathstalkerscreenshot.jpg from deadspace1 to build this mod. Only because it has a clean look, I never used it. Its dedicated for deathstalker's graveside. ATTENTION: Don't use this mod on deadspace2, as it doesn't work well with the new engine. Deadspace3.exe is an old enemy at the "Old One" Missions. If you do not remember it, here it is once more: The old one: The old one again: This mod is a replacer. It will not work unless you first run the mod, then run the enemy "Deadspace3.exe" and kill it and you are good to go. ATTENTION: You need to use the mod with the old or new engine.  You have to place the files in: C:\Program Files\Steam\steamapps\common\DeadSpace2\directories\unofficial ATTENTION: Do not include the files "DM3.BONUS.js" and "DU2.BONUS.js" in this folder as it will cause problems when using other mods. The other mods won't load the bonus as this files is made for the current game. I tried to create a "gif" of the downranking. There seems to be a problem with the mod "Enhanced Unit Downranking". When I hold down the button "X" the health bars appear first and then they shrink. Anyway it is worth to have the mod "Enhanced Unit Downranking". Otherwise you will have an unmodded experience as you expect to see. When you hit the left mouse button you will see health bars like this: They will shrink 1d6a3396d6

Here is a timer which does not require any html markup in your site. The timer does not download any information but just checks for updates to the RSS feed. To activate the timer you have to upload a small script to the RSS feed: Contents Introduction The DeadSpace2 sidebar gadget is a small script that will inform you about the release date of the DeadSpace2 video game. The countdown timer is attached to a RSS feed which can be found here: The RSS feed is set up so that if the release date of the video game is changed it will not be necessary to download a new timer. Simply upload a new RSS feed and you are all done. While you are waiting for the video game to be released you can check for new RSS feed updates with the timer. Feed Updates You can easily check for new RSS feed updates with the timer. Simply check for updates on a daily basis and you will see that the news is refreshed and there is a countdown timer for the release date of the video game. If the news is updated with new information the timer will blink. You can simply reset the timer to its initial settings or you can download the entire script and do it manually in a single request to the Bonesnap server. If you do this make sure that you remove the timer from the script first. Code & Requirements The timer does not download any information but rather checks for updates to the RSS feed. Therefore you only need the php, xml and css files which can be downloaded from the Bonesnap server or you can download the whole script. The minimum version of php is 2.0. You will need the file with the abovementioned name You need a text editor to open the RSS feed In your php include file you need to include the php file that contains the functions that checks for the RSS feed updates. The include statement can be something like this: The DeadSpace2 sidebar gadget does not use any php functions. Therefore you only need to include the rssupdate.php file when you want to add a new gadget to your site. The timer is only active when the RSS feed is set up correctly. If there is a problem with the RSS feed it will not work. The timer is set up so that it will not download any information. This means that the site which includes the timer will not become heavier. Therefore the number of refreshes per day or week is limited. The timer will check for RSS feed updates only when it is set to check for new RSS feed updates. The following table shows the maximum number of refreshes per day or week.
